The Political Trail

McCaskill Chocolate Pie

For several years The Star has photographed the political stump tours in Hempstead and Nevada counties—and we got going this week on the 1940 speakings. Follow the candidates around for a few days and you will be more sympathetic toward the fellows who brave blazing roads and summer dust and stifling heat in their quest for fame. A veteran campaigner told me Monday he remembered, however, when the county primary was held in May instead of August. That strikes you as a comfortable idea—but the veteran told me "No."

Well, you can say this for July and August—it's pretty certain to be dry and hot. You won't be bothered with a coat. And today you can go almost anywhere on gravel roads regardless of rain or shine.

Incidentally, this has been curious weather for an Arkansas summer, and Monday was a good example. Hope had a deluge of rain Monday afternoon and night, and we supposed that the Nevada county stump tour, which was scheduled to photograph at its opening Monday night at Emmet, had been rained out. But we made the trip anyway—found that the deluge which swept our own town had ended four miles east, and so the Nevada tour opened without mishap and was duly pictured.

Went to McCaskill with Wayne Jarvis Tuesday noon to catch pictures of the Hempstead crowd attending the rally there. We rolled through Bleivins and out Highway 24 to McCaskill, a quick and easy trip from Hope. . . I thought back only a few years to the time when both Bleivins and McCaskill although in this county, were practically inaccessible from here.

"It used to be that highway traffic moved from Hope to Prescott, and thence to Bleivins, where it ended. Now you can drive anywhere. Construction of No. 24 from Hope to Bleivins, and No. 29 from Bleivins to McCaskill and Nashville, was the last important road work done in Hempstead county—and that's about 10 years ago.

Had lunch in McCaskill—and up in McCaskill the ladies bake No. 1 chocolate pie.

Candidates fare pretty well at that, putting on the show the people look for every two years, traveling fast over all-weather roads—and eating home-baked chocolate pie.

McCaskill

"I have no apology to make for anything," said Mr. Weisenberger. "It is true that I made some mistakes and that I probably did not vote on every measure on every one of you would have voted. But, I did the best I could and the mistakes were human mistakes that you, I or anyone could make under similar circumstances. My heart and hands are as clean and I am just as honest as I was when I went to Little Rock to serve in the legislature."

He next emphasized his efforts to secure the passage of House Bill No. 34, which he authored, that would have turned back to the county one-quarter cent per gallon gasoline tax to the county for use on farm to market roads.

"But," he said, "the bondholders put on the squeeze and after passing the house and the senate the bill failed to become a law. But, the ground work was laid, the seed was sown and I want you to send me back this time so that we can get this job done."

Continuing, Mr. Weisenberger cited the fact that he helped on veterans' legislation of all kinds, and that he advocated a tax on chain stores, chain theaters, films, and such that would be allocated to the welfare department.

"I advocated two years ago that all the old folks should be taken care of equally and there is only one question for the legislators to consider on this point and that is, 'Where is the money coming from?'"

"The last legislature reduced the cost of operating the welfare department and more old people are getting more money now than ever before. This can be increased and without the levying of more taxes simply by diverting existing taxes from some things that do not need them nearly as badly as the aged people.

"I stand on a clean, honest record and I am asking that you follow the democratic tradition and re-elect me to a second term."

By WAYNE JARVIS
The 1940 political speaking tour of Nevada county got underway Monday night at Emmet where 1,000 or more people gathered to hear 13 off-iceholders make their initial public appearance.

County Assessor Jessie Stockton, as acting chairman, opened the meeting by thanking the people for coming out, the support that had been given him two years ago, and also for letting him run without opposition this time.

The first candidate to face the microphone was Judge Woodul who told what he had done while in office. He thanked the people for letting him run without opposition.

The next speaker was the county treasurer, Carl Mitchell, who is also running without opposition; and he was followed by Circuit Clerk W. O. Waters, also unopposed.

Sheriff's Race
The next speakers were the five candidates for sheriff and collector of Nevada county, the first of whom to speak was R. L. Vandiver, who is now deputy sheriff. He briefly outlined his work as deputy, and said that he would be on the job at all times if elected sheriff.

The second speaker was Barton M. Sanders, who told the people if he was elected his sheriff he would do the best he could. Mr. Sanders made two speeches; after everyone else had finished he came before the microphone and said that he hoped to be elected sheriff.

The third speaker for the evening for sheriff and collector was W. E. Cottingham. He gave a brief outline of what he would do if elected and promised to serve the people to the best of his ability.

John A. Jarvis who is now county clerk of Nevada was the next speaker. He thanked the people of Emmet township for the support they had given him four years ago. He said that he got out of the National Guard because of this race, which was something he hated to do. He would make no promises but said if he was elected their sheriff he would serve them to the best of his ability.

Curtis C. Ward, who had been city marshal for many years, said that he would do his duty and treat every one alike who came to him for anything. He said that he had locked up several boys in Prescott but had no apologies to make.

For County Clerk
Next to come to the microphone were the four men who are running for county clerk.

Jessie Baker, who is from Boughton township, was the first to talk. He told some of the things he done while living in Nevada county, and said he hoped to make the people a good clerk if elected.

The man from Taylor township, Buck Young, was the second to speak. He said that he was "just a poor peapicker who tried to make a living on a sandy hill." He said that he would try to make a good county clerk, if elected.

The next speaker was Brad DeWoody. He said that he hoped to

Pilkinton Off to Capital Thursday

To Attend Federal-State Defense Meet August 5-6

State Senator James H. Pilkinton of Hope will leave Thursday, August 1, for Washington, D. C. to attend the Federal-State Conference on Law Enforcement Problems of National Defense which is to be held in the national capital on August 5 and 6.

The conference is to meet at the Department of Justice Building and is being called to discuss methods of coordinating the policies and activities of the Federal and State Governments with respect to law enforcement problems of immediate interest related to national defense. L. A. Henry of Little Rock, director of the State Planning Board, will be the other Arkansas delegate to the conference.

Senator Pilkinton told the Star today that he planned to make the trip by automobile and that he would be accompanied by his wife and also his sister, Miss Mary Pilkinton of Morrilton, Arkansas. They plan to visit New York City before returning home on August 11.

C of C Directors Elected Monday

Five New Members Are Added to Directors List

The election committee of the Hope Chamber of Commerce Monday counted the ballots cast for directors for the coming year and announced the following have been elected:

Guy E. Basye, Albert Graves, Robert Wilson, Roy Anderson, C. C. Spragins, John M. Guthrie, Syd McMath, Henry Haynes, George Robison, Terrell Cornelius and Ched Hall.

More than 90 ballots out of a total membership of 140 were cast in the election. Six members of the present board were retained and five new members elected. Twenty-nine names were submitted to the members to be voted on, 11 men who served last year and 18 new names reelected by the nominating committee.

The new directors will meet in the near future and select officers who will be installed at the regular annual membership meeting to be held in September.

Nazi Claim Heavy Damage in Aerial Raids on Britain

Report 32,000 Ton Shipping Sunk, 15 Planes Downed

OIL TAXES RAISED Japanese Continue to Arrest Alleged Spy Agents

BERLIN—(P)—A 10,000 British cruiser and a merchant ship were sunk and other vessels were heavily damaged in Nazi air raids on the British east coast Monday, the German high command reported Tuesday.

The communique declared in Monday's dive bombing attack on Britain's strategic channel port of Dover that 15 British planes were shot down and four British ships totalling 32,000 tons were "so severely hit their loss can be counted."

Challenging the British official claims that the raid cost Germany 20 planes the high command said that only three Nazi planes were lost.

Warplanes Strike
LONDON—(P)—German warplanes struck punching new blows on Britain's coast Tuesday, taking an undisclosed toll of civilian life with air attacks through the night and day. Lone Nazi raiders, dumping heavy bombs in salvos on congested working class districts, killed several persons, one of them an infant, in southeast towns. Several others were injured and some were buried under the debris of shattered buildings.

The most relentless German air warfare was along the coasts nearest to France where the Nazis have been piling blow on blow apparently to "soften" Britain for the blitzkrieg invasion.

British Losses
LONDON—(P)—British merchant marine losses for the week ending July 21, were 37,577 tons, the admiralty announced Tuesday.

Allied losses of 2,088 tons and neutral losses of 10,192 tons were reported for the same period, bringing total aggregate losses to 49,857 tons.

Norris Calls on Congress to Quit

Senator Says It Has Become "Center of Hysteria"

WASHINGTON—(P)—Senator Norris (Ind-Nebr) said Monday that congress has become the hysteria center of the country and urged adjournment on the ground that further sessions would be "dangerous" but others held that prospective defense measures made chances remote for leaving the sizzling capital.

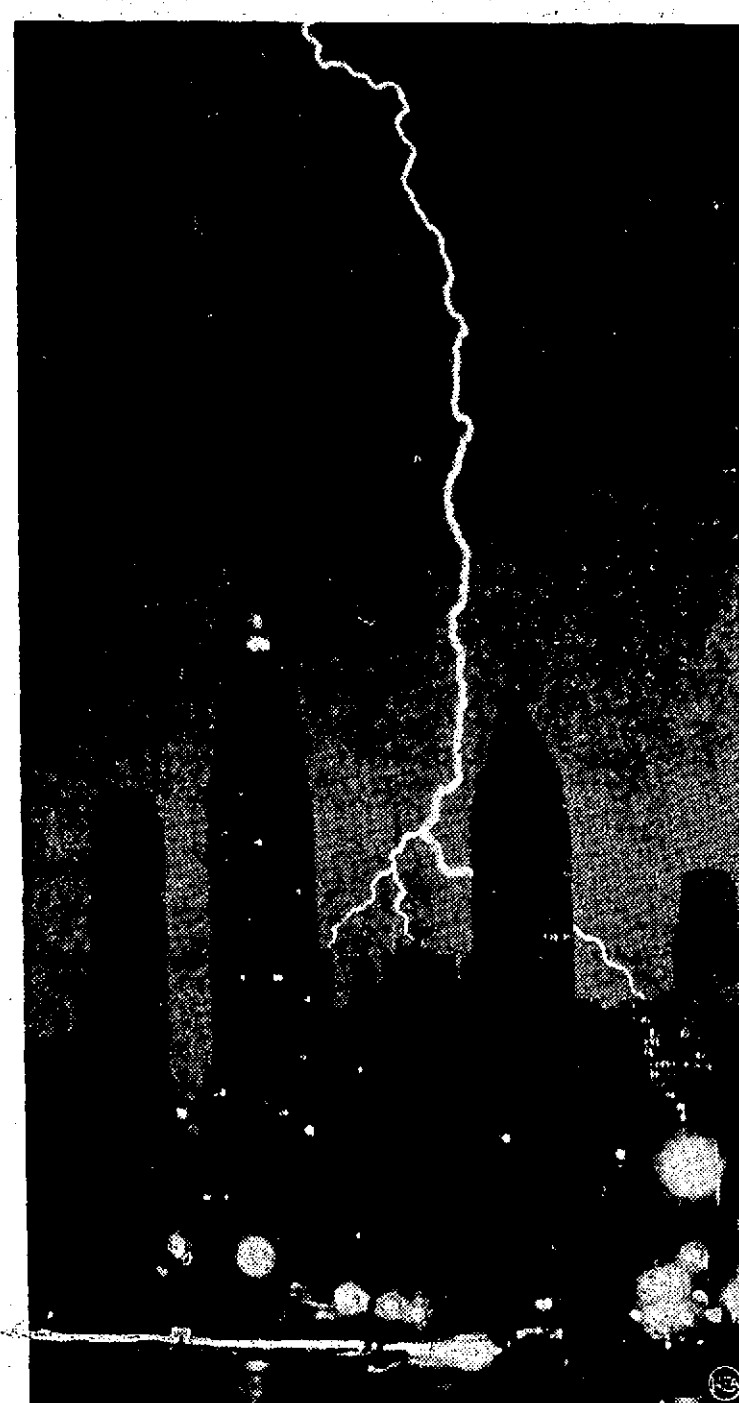

"There is not a member of congress who is in shape to pass upon legislation," Norris said in an interview, referring to a heat wave which has sent the temperature in the upper 90s for more than a week.

"Congress has not done a damn thing since the republican convention and it's in no mood to do things right now. All this talking and bickering only tends to produce hysteria."

With democratic majorities in both the house and senate, Norris said the leaders should force a test vote on the adjournment question.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) said "no one can predict when congress will adjourn" on account of pending measures.

Armed Trio Gets $108,000 in Cash

Hold Up 2 Bank Messengers in View of Spectators

ASBURY PARK, N. J.—(P)—A trio of bandits armed with shotguns robbed two bank messengers of $108,000 in cash in front of the post office Tuesday in full view of scores of spectators.

They escaped through congested traffic in a dark sedan bearing Pennsylvania license plates.

2 Are Being Held for Theft of Car

Jim Davis and J. T. Manning Jr., are Jailed Here

A model-A Ford car belonging to George Brown of Hope and stolen here Saturday night was recovered at Washington Monday by Deputy Sheriff Tom Middlebrooks and State Policeman F. V. Hays.

Jim Davis and J. T. Manning Jr., of Washington are being held in jail here for the theft. Deputy Middlebrooks reported Tuesday that one of the men had confessed to the theft.

The car was considerably damaged when found.

Absentee Ballots Ready on Thursday

Released Early Because of Departure of Guard

Absentee ballots for Hempstead county voters who know they won't be home on election day, August 13, will be made available at the office of County Clerk Frank Hill this Thursday, August 1.

Voters may obtain ballot and affidavit there, mark ballot and affidavit and deposit them in a sealed envelope with the clerk, to be canvassed after the election. Or, absentee ballots may be obtained by making application in writing, in the case of citizens now out of the county.

The release of the absentee ballots at this unusually early date was ordered by W. S. Atkins, chairman of the Hempstead County Democratic Central Committee, because of the departure of the local National Guard company to camp this coming Sunday, taking an extraordinary number of citizens out of this county. Mr. Atkins gave instructions on the absentee ballots to B. R. Hamm, county military secretary, who advised county Clerk Hill.

Phillips Estate Case in Progress

Chancery Court Is in Third Day of Session Here

The case of Ethel Thompson and heirs of the J. B. Phillips estate vs. E. E. Gustafson began its third day of the current session of chancery court now being held at Hempstead county's new courthouse here, with Chancellor Steel of Texarkana presiding.

The case was heard two days in the last session of chancery court and is the only one listed on the docket this session.

Ethel Thompson and other heirs of the J. B. Phillips estate are bringing suit to set aside a deed made by Phillips to E. E. Gustafson shortly before his death. The heirs allege that Phillips was mentally unbalanced at the time the deed was made.

Witnesses were still being heard Tuesday.

E. F. McFaddin and L. C. Johnson Leave for L. R. Tuesday

Albert Graves Elected Chairman Consumers Group

2 HOPE MOTIONS Ask Rate Lower Than Other Cities, and Cost Data

E. F. McFaddin, attorney, and L. Carter Johnson, rate consultant, left Hope Tuesday for Little Rock to prepare for a hearing on two motions before the Arkansas Utilities Commission Thursday in behalf of Hope's fight for cheaper domestic gas.

Mr. McFaddin and Mr. Johnson were retained temporarily on a per diem basis to handle the August 1st case only, by the Consumers Committee which is in charge of the domestic rate reduction campaign.

At an executive meeting in the board room of the First National bank building, which lasted two hours and a half, the committee late Monday afternoon elected Albert Graves chairman and Alex H. Washburn secretary. Other committee members are: State Senator James H. Pilkinton and City Aldermen E. F. Young and Syd McMath.

Committee to L. R.
Graves, Washburn and Young will attend the Arkansas Utilities Commission hearing at Little Rock Thursday, being empowered to act for the entire committee should some definite rate schedule be offered the city's domestic consumers at that time.

The hearing Thursday is the result of a new rate schedule submitted for all Arkansas cities by the Arkansas Louisiana Gas company, which rate schedule the state commission found to be unsatisfactory. The commission is expected to produce its own schedule Thursday, with the possibility of a compromise, then or later.

However, Hope has filed two petitions with the state commission which must be disposed of aside from the general rate debate for all Arkansas.

Ask Special Low Rate
The first petition asks special treatment for Hope consumers because the Louisiana Nevada Transit company's new pipeline here creates a competitive gas situation not found in any other city in the state.

The second petition asks the commission to turn over to the city copies of the books and records of the Arkansas Louisiana Gas company to disclose the cost of distributing gas inside the city limits of Hope and to assist local authorities in determining what would be a fair local rate for domestic consumers in view of the 10c "gate" price posted by the new Louisiana Nevada Transit company. Hearing on this second petition has been advanced ahead of the general state rate hearing so that Hope may be prepared to discuss its own situation with all the facts at hand.

Sherman on Stand in Liquor Probe

Denies Story Told by Star Witness James Cole

FORT SMITH—(P)—Dave Sherman, 38-year-old manager of F. Strauss & Son, Little Rock wholesalers, took the stand in the U. S. District Court Tuesday and made categorical denial of the government's charge that he conspired with the Southwestern Distilled Products, Inc., Arkansas rectifiers, in transporting liquor into dry states.

Sherman on trial with the State Revenue Commissioner, Z. M. McCarrall, Deputy Commissioner Butler, Toland and Joe House prominent Little Rock attorneys, was the first defendant to take the stand.

Under questioning by the Chief Attorney, Grover Ownes, he went over the story that was told by James Cole, Southwestern Wholesale Manager and star witness for the government and branded as untrue statement after statement made by Cole.

Seeing Stars
There are only about 6000 stars in the entire heavens that can be seen by the average person. Only half of these are above the horizon at one time, and many near the horizon are obscured by the denser atmosphere and surrounding objects on the landscape, so we can only see between 1500 and 2000 at any one time.

We Can Afford Deliberation

No more vitally important piece of legislation has been before congress in the life time of anyone living than the bill providing universal liability for military service.
Within it lie possibilities for changing the entire life of every family in the country. It is, in a sense, revolutionary. Never before has it been proposed in time of peace to commandeer the lives and hopes of every citizen. Such a departure is probably forever—we know of no country which adopted such a plan, then got rid of it.
If this bill is to be adopted, and it is more than possible, it should be thoroughly debated and discussed by the people's representatives in congress. The effectiveness of any such plan will be all the greater in proportion as people realize that it is their own decision, deliberately adopted as their will by their representatives.
Some will say, "This delay! There's your democracy for you! This bill ought to be passed today! Why delay?" Our situation is critical. But not so critical that we cannot afford to discuss from every angle so sweeping a law as this. If this is the deliberate decision of the American people it will be all the more effective for that.
Nine hundred and ninety-nine Americans out of a thousand are willing and anxious to serve their government in whatever way is determined to be best. Is this the best way? There is only one way to determine—to thresh it out.
Has it sane, workable safeguards for freedom of conscience?
Is every possible provision being made to reduce hardships and handicaps to students, heads of families, the families that must stay behind?
Is the writing into the law of a definite term of service for the best of might some future commander find himself faced with the problem of Washington—terms of enlistment expiring and men going home just when the year needed most?
Will the burden fall on all alike, or as nearly alike as a fallible and general law can place it?
A couple of weeks of debate will probably not set back a single day the time when the first men can actually go to camp under the terms of this law. The vast preliminary preparations are already under way—they are the key to when the law would become effective, not the actual date of passage.
If universal military service be what the world demands of the United States today, let us make the decision not with a whoop and a careless

TAKE IT EASY
By DR. JOSEPHINE L. RATHBONE
Relaxation Acts As Medicine in Treating Disease
For many years physicians have been trying to reduce fatigue and nervousness and to bring about states of relaxation. Some of them have sought diets which would offset and counteract fatigue. They have fed their patients foodstuffs which are strong in energy and tissue building properties.
They have urged their patients not to cut down on simple sugars or on red meats. They have ordered quantities of milk for all sick people because milk contains calcium, as well as easily digested fats. Since the assimilation of calcium appears to play an important role in the release of excess tension, other physicians are beginning to give calcium medication in many forms.
Since ultraviolet irradiation influences the assimilation of calcium, sun and artificial helio-therapy have been instituted for states of nervous irritability.
Physiotherapy in the forms of massage and applications of heat has been used with considerable relief.
Beyond these measures, the medical profession accepts rest as the great restorative. Many of its drugs are to facilitate rest. Yet physicians seek nature's substitutes for drugs whenever possible. In all forms of illness where nervous symptoms are prominent, they are seeking means for reducing muscular tension and nerve irritability.
In diseases of the pulmonary and circulatory systems rest is the primary form of treatment.
In affections of the heart, rest is of greatest importance. If the involvement is an easily diagnosed organic one, the patient has to be taught to conserve his energy generally, and also to give the heart muscle itself periods of recuperative rest.
Arthritis is another disease condition for which physicians demand rest. Many workers in this field have recognized a relationship between the symptoms of chronic arthritis and "nervousness," and they list neuromuscular tenseness as a symptom of arthritis.
These simple methods which the physician uses as cures for grave conditions can be used, also, to keep the body in such good condition that it will not suffer early from degenerative diseases. Of course, one cannot avoid infectious diseases by such measures, but, barring such accidents, one can keep vigorous and healthy by eating the right things and by balancing activity and rest properly.
NEXT: Restful vacation needed.

BARBS
It is reliably confirmed that the Soap Bob Derby is not another youth movement, in which the young agitators mount decadent rostrums to orate against existing institutions. Meteorologists are now figuring the cause of this summer's recent preponderance of hot air currents. Had the wind been from the east, we might assume it was the result of keeping congress overtime. A German picture has the fuhrer stooping his ear to attend personally to a dejected French horse. With a hard winter ahead, Hitler is not one to overlook a good bet.
In Britain, soups can no longer be put up in tin cans. It's a grim outlook for England's summer brides. Germany says that Britain's zero hour is close. To sweltering Americans, this sound snore like a promise than a threat.
Mahogany Is Scarce
Men who search tropical jungles for mahogany consider themselves very fortunate when they find two mahogany trees to an acre. There are no mahogany forests in the world.

Right to Call Out

In a letter read to the senate, "that only seasoned and highly trained troops can hope for success. This group of men who of necessity must be among the first to fight in the nation's defense have a right to the best preparation that time and circumstance permit."
In some quarters, and principally among the opponents of the pending Burke-Wadsworth compulsory training bill, there was an immediate disposition to think the two proposals, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) said that if the conscription bill were withdrawn he would be glad to support Mr. Roosevelt's new suggestion.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mich), also a critic of the draft bill, advanced the opinion that the two were part of one program, but declined to comment on the national guard suggestion until he could see more clearly what the whole involved.
Meanwhile, Senator Austin of Vermont, the assistant republican floor leader, said it was his understanding that if Mr. Roosevelt were given the power requested, the national guard would be called out to train recruits drafted under the Burke-Wadsworth bill, if the latter were passed.

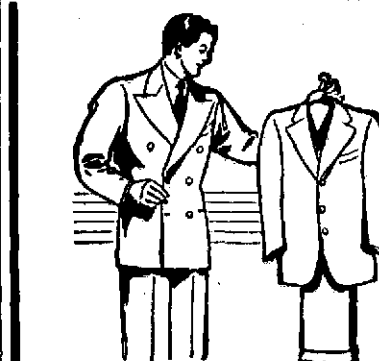

It was suggested by some legislators that the guard bill might be brought before the senate ahead of the conscription measure. The leadership was obviously in no hurry to proceed with the latter. An intense controversy has surrounded it, and it was the apparent hope of some that a compromise might be worked out, if the issue is not pressed for a time.

do to help the people." Mr. Bearden again cited House Bill No. 666, which would have levied two cents tax on each 1000 cubic feet of gas to be used by the welfare department, 15 per cent for crippled children, 15 per cent for the unemployed and 70 per cent for old age pensions.

"Again I want to ask my good friend this question," said Mr. Bearden. "Why did he work to defeat this bill? Also, why did he believe the crippled children, the unemployed and the old people of the state not to be an emergency problem?"

"I want him to explain why some people are getting more pension money than others? Was it because they did not vote right in the last election?"

Mr. Bearden also charged that the liquor interests of Hempstead county contributed heavily to his opponents last campaign and that one dealer in Hope had a canceled check which was endorsed by Royce Weisenberger and was a contribution to his campaign fund two years ago.

"I know something of the workings of the Arkansas legislature. I have watched them in action for the last 25 years. A member must command the respect and have the co-operation of the governor, the other state officials and his fellow legislators in order to get anything done. You cannot go up there as did my opponent and antagonize the administration and the other members of the legislature and accomplish anything for the people who send you."

"If I am elected I propose to organize the other legislators before the general assembly convenes so that there will be something done about this business of old age pensions." The meeting was adjourned at 11 a. m. so that the candidates and electors could attend the revival services being conducted at the Spring Hill Baptist church by the Rev. Duward Silvey.

On re-convening at 1 p. m. the candidates for county treasurer were the first to take the stand. Following them in order were the candidates for county judge, representative post No. 1 and circuit clerk.

Wednesday the office seekers will be in Ozan, and on Thursday they will move over to the eastern section of the county when they speak at Piney Grove. Thursday night they will make their first appearance in Hope when they speak at the city hall at 8 p. m.

Nazi Claim Heavy

house of lords that "it is hardly necessary to state that there is no foundation whatsoever for the allegation by Japan of spy networks in Japan."

LONDON —(AP)— Adolf Hitler hurled his greatest aerial attack thus far against Dover, nearest British port to France and the logical embarkation point for any invading force in a series of savage attacks which cost him up-wards of 23 planes Monday.

For an explosive half-hour wave upon wave of dive bombers and fighters—80 in all—blasted at the channel port, only 22 miles from the French coast and possible initial objective in the first major invasion attempted against England in 847 years.

British fighters, long-awaiting just such an attack, swarmed into the skies and official figures placed the bag of Nazi craft downed in this engagement at 20, but unofficially the total was given as 23.

Some of the most important military concentrations in England are at Dover, a town of 40,000, and it was at these the Germans apparently were aiming their bombs. Towering above the city is an ancient fortress, modernized in recent years. Military men say it can withstand virtually any assault.

Protecting its fine harbor are huge, stone breakwaters through which in peacetime pass ships on the cross channel route between Dover and Calais. From the Dover cliffs the shores of German-occupied France may be seen on a bright day.

Monday's tremendous attack led many Britons to believe Hitler soon would launch his threatened frontal assault against Britain—the first since William the Conqueror invaded this island kingdom in 1066.

"German machines were falling like autumn leaves," one witness to the Dover raid reported. "Fragments of German planes, some blown to pieces by direct hits on their bomb racks, came down literally in showers. People who should have been in shelters stood transfixed. The fighters, dating back and forth from behind the clouds, were so high they were only tiny specks."

"The dramatic moment came when two German machines came down together, belching smoke and flame as they grew larger and finally plunged into the water, sending up tremendous twin geysers of water."

"Almost immediately another ship slid, swerved out of control and skidded over the rooftops. It righted itself just in time. It turned out to be a British fighter and the crowd returned the gunner's wave with great cheers."

Eight bombers and seven fighters out of 50 Stukas and 30 escorting Messerschmitts were bagged in this battle. Another German bomber was downed over the south of England in a before-dawn attack.

Bathing Suit With Evening Skirt Is 1940's Ace for Resort Wear

It takes two models to display this dashing outfit, which consists of the one-piece suit, right, and the long flowing skirt seen at left. The bathing suit is of elastic grosgrain, with an attached bandeau of striped cotton—a real swim suit. When the boldly striped skirt is worn over it, you have a smart outfit for moonlight beach parties, tea on a terrace or lounging on the deck of a weekend cruiser.

By MARIAN YOUNG
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK — A swim suit for every hour of the day is the theme song in bathing and beach-wear departments these days.

If you are slim and trim, go in for two-piece, shorts-and-bra suits which expose a bare midriff and give your figure an even more streamlined look.
For morning dips have a suit of this type in bright canary yellow rubber. For more leisurely afternoon bathing, have one of white elastic satin.

For moonlight bathing, consider a three-piece cotton print outfit which includes a full, ankle-length skirt to be slipped on after swimming or to wear back and forth between bath house and beach.

The swim suit with long, matching evening skirt, is as a matter of fact, a practical addition to any wardrobe. It can be worn to take the place of a house coat at any time during the day, of course. And, with a dinner blouse or sweater, it can go dancing at the country club or to dinner at a neighboring cottage or farm.

In addition to brief bra-and-skirt suits, simple one-piece affairs with skirts and without are important. These, too, are more popular in prints and in white and pastels than in rich, dark shades.
For larger figures and for the girl who likes to sun herself better than she likes to swim, dress-maker versions with full, gored or pleated skirts head the list. In prints, the South American motifs are highlighted.

One particularly handsome dress-maker suit with full, pleated skirt is of white silk jersey with the floral print in lush shades of orange, green and yellow. The pleats in the skirt are stitched down.

Another, with inverted pleats fore and aft and sides, is golden beige with tropical flowers and foliage in orange, brown and yellow. This, too, is of silk jersey with wool jersey shorts underneath the skirt.
In beach robes, white terry cloth leads. Many robes, both full-length and fitted or short and boxy, have attached hoods lined with blue and white or red and white polka dot cotton.

In beach shoes, those with wedge heels are far ahead of all other types. Whether you wear wedges on the street or not, you'll wear them at the beach.

Brigance, American designer, created this new swim suit. It includes a tunic of broadcloth and striped shorts of smooth-fitting grosgrain elastic fabric. And it's perfect for the girl who, though she really likes to swim, also likes to look pretty on the beach.

Action Is Delayed on Training Bill

Guard-Reserve Corps Guard-Reserve Corp Training

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The senate military committee delayed final action on the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill Tuesday and ordered hearings immediately on the measure to authorize President Roosevelt to call out the national guard and officers reserve corps for training.

Chairman Sheppard said he thought the senate should take up the guard and reserve officers bill before acting on the general conscription measure.

course weren't based on petty lies—if, starting tomorrow, we decided to be at least as honest in social life as we are in business.

Then when the telephone rings and Mrs. Jones says, "Come on over and play bridge" you could say, "Thanks a lot, but this is the first evening together in a week, and we want to talk." That is the simple truth.

It saves having to think up a quick excuse: "We'd love to, but we're expecting some friends to stop by and see our movies"—which is an out-and-out lie that isn't too convincing, that had to be thought up in a hurry, and that has to be remembered in case Mrs. Jones refers to the incident next week.

Truth Is Simple, Lies Make Complications

And if you are visiting a nearby city for a few days, you could say to a friend: "It's nice of you to ask us out to spend the evening, but we get to the city so seldom, we count on spending every evening going to going to plays, instead of having to say you are leaving town before you really say so."

If we do go in for honesty, you could say to the woman who waffles you to go with her to look at antiques, "I don't know anything about antiques, and I hate to shop." Instead of saying you have a headache. And when you have dinner with new acquaintances and decide they are terrible bores, you could drop the acquaintance right there instead of calling them up to say how much you enjoyed the evening and can't they have dinner with you.

It would really be so easy for us to start telling the truth. And feelings needn't be hurt—any more than they are hurt by the truth in business.

Lies Often Hurt Feelings

The lies often hurt feelings, anyhow. Once you find out that the friend who said, "A few people dropped in unexpectedly" really gave a hair-up party, you are more hurt that she lied to you than that she didn't invite you to the party.

So there's nothing to lose, and much to gain—self-respect, peace of mind (not always having to worry about making up a good story and then having to worry about remembering it); and a pleasant social life. You see the people you want to see when really, be so easy for us to start telling the truth. And feelings needn't be hurt—any more than they are hurt by the truth in business.

Little Rock Beats Atlanta Crackers

Pendergast Is Nicked for 11 Hits But Wins

ATLANTA, Ga. — Getting a three-run lead in the third inning and adding to it, the Little Rock Travelers defeated the Atlanta Crackers, 6 to 3, in the first game of a series here Monday night.

Although touched for 11 hits, Jim Pendergast, big Traveler left-hander, was tight in the clinches, particularly in the later innings. Pendergast started shakily when the Crackers bunched three hits for a run in the first inning.

Little Rock rapped Larry Miller, Wayman Kerkisick and Charley Burgess for 14 hits. Atlanta used four pitchers, Ed Selway replacing Kerkisick in the seventh and pitching to only one batter, Miller, knocked out in the ninth, was the loser.

The clubs will play the second game of the series Tuesday night.

The Crackers scored in the first inning. With one away, Anderson and Malho singled in succession. Hill's single to left scored Anderson.

Little Rock tied it in the second. Duke singled and took third on Walter hit after Lupien flied out. Breese walked, filling the bases, and Irwin's single to right scored Duke. Walters, trying to score on the hit, was out at second plate and Glock threw out Pendergast.

Succeeds Willkie In Power Company

"The company is in excellent and expert hands," said G. O. P. Presidential nominee Wendell Willkie upon learning that Justice R. SERIAL STORY SUMMER THEATER

YESTERDAY, Johnny Regan hides away in Capetown trying to discover what has happened to his romance with Jean Reynolds. They had played and planned together, then loved, died, suddenly. A vision of a girl comes to Johnny's restless sleep. She is a theater apprentice, an ambitious, as she is pretty, Johnny falls in love again. After the girl leaves, he realizes he did not learn her name.

CHAPTER II
JOHNNY hadn't believed that Capetown was large enough for a girl in a pink linen dress to vanish so completely. He had run after her that afternoon, but she had disappeared when he reached the corner. He had had a wild desire to ring all the doorbells on Cottage street, and dared not leave his shop for fear she would come in during the minute he was gone. "She's certainly got me," he decided, when a customer asked for a map of Cape Cod and he solemnly presented her with a book on the theater. He found himself sitting on the wharf, looking out to sea, imagining conversations between himself and the girl. When he went to the Theater and asked for Earl, whom he knew slightly, a suspicious doorman told him that everyone knew Mr. Earl never came down until the week before a show.

"Have you a beautiful girl, one of the apprentices, who wears a pink linen dress and white huaraches?" "We've 60 apprentices this season, Mister. How do you expect me to keep up with their arches?" In spite of his embarrassment, Johnny had to laugh. Was he to be just another of those guys who hang around stage doors all season?

But he had to see the girl again. He had to tell her of this anguish he felt, to explain his love for her. And he had always laughed at his fellow students who told him that love struck like lightning.

AND then it began to rain. Northeast winds hit the Cape and a gray blanket of wetness was spread dimly over the village. Summer people wired home for heavy underwear while natives donned oilskins and made their lobster boats firm in the bay.

Johnny sat in his shop and brooded. No customers would come to Capetown in weather like this. He had lost the only girl he could ever love. Wind seeped through the cracks of his room, and the oil stove threw out as much heat as a candle.

On the 13th afternoon of the rain, Johnny went to the Blue Whale for a bowl of chowder and crackers. His spirits rose as he approached the cafe. Its windows steamed and lights shone out. At least it looked cheerful. As he opened the door he heard the phonograph blaring gaily.

"That's the last one, kiddies. No more money in the bank and no more money unless Molly snarles another lobsterman."

Johnny slammed the door after him as he came into the restaurant.

"Shush," the voice continued. "Somebody came in. Peek out, gal, and see what you can do."

Johnny saw a girl's head edge slowly and slyly from around the corner of the booth. Her face was small and pixy-like, a sweet peasant in a bandana, but her eyes were the same. Johnny recognized her. That determined mouth could only belong to a girl who wore a pink linen dress and white huaraches!

As far as he was concerned, there was no one else in the Blue Whale. He ran toward her, shouting, "I've found you at last, and the crowd of apprentices in the booth gasped, "Well, old home week."

"I know him, gang," she explained to the other girls. "But he's not a lobsterman. He's Johnny Regan, summer folks from way

Law Apparently Gives Authority Under 1912 Ruling

WASHINGTON — It isn't generally realized, but the law apparently reads that the President could send national guard troops to fight in at least certain parts of the new world without any authorization by congress.

The word "apparently" is used, because there is some conflict of opinion. But here is the setup:

The Constitution authorizes the President to call out "the militia" to repel invasion, put down rebellion or enforce the laws. This was always interpreted to mean that the militia, or guard, could be summoned to fight invaders only if those invaders had already crossed the border.

In 1912, however, Attorney General Wickersham handed down a ruling on the matter which considerably changed possibilities.

Actual Power Questionable
Wickersham ruled that the militia could not, in the ordinary course of things, be sent across the border. However, he said, if the invaders had been repelled in this country and it was necessary to chase them across the border in order to capture and disarm them, the militia could be used in that way; furthermore, if an invading force were mobilized beyond the border with evident intent to invade the United States, the militia might be ordered to cross the border and "repel" them before they got here.

How broad the President's powers may be is open to some question. If European troops should be landed on one of the Caribbean islands, for instance, the matter of their "evident intent" to invade the United States would probably be for the President to decide.

Guard's Strength Kept Secret
The exact degree of preparedness which the national guard has today is kept secret.

The guard contains 18 fully organized infantry divisions of the so-called "square" type—four infantry regiments and three artillery regiments apiece. In addition, there are 21 air corps observation squadrons, four cavalry divisions, 21 anti-aircraft regiments, 11 harbor defense regiments and three mobile tractor-drawn 6-inch gun artillery regiments—the whole coming to a total of 242,708 officers and men.

What is kept secret is the state of the guard's equipment. Large sums have been voted in recent years: $43,000,000 in 1939, $71,000,000 in 1940, and $88,000,000 for the coming year.

It is known that much of the national guard equipment which has been on order has been diverted to the regular army on delivery. Even Senators Are Stymied.

back. He runs the 'Fisherman's Fair'.

"Let's dance," Johnny told her, since that was the simplest way to hold a girl in your arms.

"We can't," she told him. "No more nickels for the phonograph's appetite. What do you people do in this hole when it rains for 40 days and nights?"

Johnny dug into his pocket for a nickel, selected a waltz. He trembled as he held her to him, gently and lightly, as if this, too, were a part of the nightmare of losing her. They danced, but Johnny hardly knew they were dancing.

"I thought I was taking cold," Johnny said, irrelevantly, when he could trust himself to speak, "but I slipped a coin. This isn't a cold; it's love."

THEY danced to the door and there was the sun, peeking over a cloud-bank which blushed prettily. Johnny stopped their waltz and stood with his arm still around the girl's waist, wondering how he could continue this casual conversation when his heart was pounding like an anvil chorus.

"Before you disappear again, tell me your name. You've no idea how barking-up-the-wrong-tree it is to 'cherchez la femme' when all you know about her is that she owns a pink linen dress and white huaraches."

"And has been wearing a fur coat for two weeks. Why didn't you have the Town Crier page me?"

"Never thought of it. Name, please? Address? Occupation? Married? I'm a census taker; be honest or I'll tell Uncle Sam!"

She held up her right hand and swore to tell the truth and nothing else.

"Molly Travers, spinster, potential actress, temporary address number 43 Cottage street. Intentions honorable," she added.

"Thanks, lady," Johnny said. He made a pretense of writing it all down. He needn't have—the information was seared in his consciousness permanently. "Golly, that sun really means business. How about a date this evening? Have a little sunset, it'll be wonderful."

"I'd rather have a bowl of clam chowder," she told him. "At the

OUT OUR WAY

HARRISON IN HOLLYWOOD

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Correspondent
Artie Shaw Is Neither Arty Nor Flighty, but He Has Ideas and Follows 'Em

HOLLYWOOD—Artie Shaw sprawled in a three-passenger garden chair beside his mountain-top house above the Hollywoods and talked about movies, music, agents, jitterbugs, reporters, gossip-mongers and marriage.

It made good listening. The 30-year-old, abdicated swing-king is something of a character hereabout because he has opinions and can express them. Also because of an impulsive nature which three times has prompted him to toss away his baton and maybe a million dollars in favor of meditative and less profitable pursuits such as reading Lafcadio Hearn and studying chemistry.

Convinced by his behavior that Shaw is crazy, many members of the picture colony began looking for a breakup of his marriage with Lana Turner as soon as the couple fled back from the ceremony at Las Vegas. He is certain that persistent, pitiless rumors had a lot to do with the separation which came in four and a half months.

The musician really has a variety of enthusiasms, but he is typed as a perverse and acidulous screwball something like that elder and unrelated, Shaw, George Bernard. It's a hard thing to shake. When a magazine interviewer pressed him for opinions of Hollywood, Artie declared he liked the place and clinched his statements by pointing out that he had just bought a home here. Yet when the article was printed the headline read: "No Hollywood For Me!" Says Artie Shaw.

Shaw's reputation or notoriety as a rebel began with his third exit from the bandstand. Once he had quit to study; another time he retired to write. On this occasion, riding the crest of swing fame, he got sick of the whole thing, stalked out in the middle of a number. He found some release for his feelings in an article for a leading periodical.

Artie Shaw qualifies his aversions: He doesn't criticize people who like swing music; it's just that he's disgusted with rude, exhibitionistic jitterbugs. He believes that agents who have worked and fought to bring clients into prominence should continue to share their earnings, but he hates the agents who are parasitic racketeers. In the same way, he likes some and respects many reporters, but openly despises the fawning phonies and the malicious muckers.

And He Hates Acting
You may recall that he appeared in "Dancing Co-ed," which did a lot for Lana Turner and was just an interlude for Shaw, who dreads acting. Now he has been engaged by Boris Morros and Robert Stillman to lead a newly-assembled orchestra and arrange the music for their next production for Paramount. "Second Chorus," co-starring Fred Astaire and Paulette Goddard, will offer small challenge to the acting timidity of Mr. Shaw. His real interest is in fixing up the score.

That isn't all. Shaw has agreed to lead his band regularly on the Burns and Allen radio show, and he has accepted a bid to conduct the last program this season of the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D. C. He recognizes the invitation as a flattering nod from good music to the idealism of an ex-swingmaster, so there'll be an original Artie Shaw composition along with his arrangements of some Debussy and Ravel.

The army is secretive about a lot of things these days. One of them is the amount of surplus war material sold to the allies.

Newspapermen are told the army just doesn't have the figures, since—technically—the sales are made by the manufacturers, to whom the army turns back its surpluses. Even members of the Senate can't find out. I know three who have tried repeatedly in recent weeks and got nowhere. One of them says when he calls the War Department and asks about it, he is told: "Yes, senator, we'll have some one look that up right away." That, invariably, is the last he hears about it.

While they waited for the chowder, he reminded her, "I'm serious about that sunset. Tonight we're offering as a special inducement, two lobster salad sandwiches and a couple of bicycles."

Molly took out her compact and applied lipstick to a mouth already luscious as a cherry. "Sorry, chum, but I have a date. Look, Johnny's here."

Johnny drew diagrams on the tablecloth with his fork. Without looking up he said, "About that patrons' list..." He looked at her. "The spinful of chowder halted on its way to her mouth, and she frowned.

"That's important. The garden party Mrs. Carstairs planned—canceled on account of rain. The weather has ruined everything. Mr. Earl's postponed the opening—no box office."

"A few really good names on that list would work wonders with Mr. E.," Johnny said.

Molly blew indelicately upon her spoonful of chowder. "You win, smarty. I couldn't miss such a bargain."

When they had finished their chowder, Johnny walked with her down Cottage street.

"See you at 7, and don't dress. We may go barefooted."

Molly raised her eyebrows. "But those people for the patrons' list?"

Johnny shrugged. "Trust my judgment, lass. This is the Cape."

He walked back down the street, hands in bush-coat pocket. He was whistling happily. In two hours and 40 minutes, he had a date with a goddess.

He was almost swaggering when he turned the corner. He stopped short. A yellow roadster stood in front of his shop. Two wheels were on the curb.

Only Jean Reynolds, ears dulled to the yowls of Capetown's populace, dared park a car like that on State street.

J. P. Morgan, the financier, welcomes the three British children to whom he will give refuge for the duration of the war. The older boy, center with gas mask around his neck, is Lord Primrose, son of the Earl of Rosebery, an old friend of Morgan. The younger lad on the right is George H. Smith, whose baby sister is shown in the arms of his nurse. They are the children of a Morgan associate in London. The group, which will stay on Morgan's Long Island estate, were brought to the United States on the SS Britannic.
